

The Journal of AIISH, Volume 35, 2016 has perspective articles, case report and research articles in Speech, Language and Hearing. Dr. C. S. Vanaja, Professor & Head, Department of Speech & Hearing, School of Audiology & Speech Language Pathology, Bhartiya Vidyapeeth Deemed University, Pune has written a perspective article on Cortical Auditory Evoked Potentials: Evidence for use in Clinical Practice, and Dr. Prakash Boominathan, Professor, Dept. of Speech Language & Hearing Sciences, Sri Ramachandra University, Chennai has written an article on Expanding Frontiers in Voice Health & Care – Application for India.

Yuvaraj and colleagues have written a case report on ANSD in a patient with Leigh's Disease. One article on speaker identification has been written by Pankaja and Hema under Speech section; one article by Seth and colleagues on rapid automatised reading under Language section. There are 3 articles on temporal processing, tinnitus, and noise in Hearing section.

I wish to place on record the sincere effort and contribution of my colleague Dr. Sandeep M., Reader in Audiology, and all the members of Editorial Board and Reviewers, in bringing out this volume. I am sure the results of all the articles would be useful to the professionals in the field of Speech & Hearing and would open new horizon for research. Feedback, if any, on the articles can be sent to director@aiishmysore.in.
